UTAH TECHNICAL COLLEGE AT SALT LAKE

INSTITUTE 1977

Well, here it is September again, the time of the year when the faculty returns from their exotic trips proving to themselves that the world is round and their pocketbooks are flat.

Speaking of flat wallets, you'll notice the cost of living continues to advance. And you'll notice on your pay checks the detailed explanation of deductions for taxes, social security, retirement, etc., etc., etc. Well, it's part of the continuing program here at Utah Tech to handicap the hired.

In your absence a couple of new nations have been formed. Take note you political science teachers. One new nation is called Kutchi Kutchi. I can just hear Joe Graves now. If they ever have a revolution, it would be called a Kutchi Kutchi Coup.

Oh, and I have to mention Verlaine Zito, Ann Erickson, Judy Lunt, and Lorraine Olsen. They report that being a sexist isn't as exciting as it sounds.

By the way, I saw Evan Chaffin this summer with his beard shaved off. He told me he shaved it off for a little while because he forgot what he looked like.

Yes, the glowing embers of backyard barbecues are going out and the little lights on electric blanks are going on.

One more thing before we go on, I want to urge you to watch your weight this year. And as a guide to your weight watching, remember you're too fat when after you sit in a metal chair you have to fluff it up.
